"A HAND-CLASP"

By Raymond H. Clark
Pastor, Edgely Union Church

"Jesus 'took him by the hand'" This was one of the wonderful secrets of the Redeemer's power over human hearts. Touch—a personal touch, symbol of heart sympathy—is a key that unlocks many an imprisoned life. A sweet example of it was seen in the Earl of Shaftesbury as he went on his ministry of love among London criminals. One who was reformed dated his uplift to his intercourse with the Earl.

"What did he say to you?" asked one.

"Oh, it was not so much what he said as what he did. He took my hand and said: 'Jack, we'll make a man of you yet.' It was the touch that did it."

Daniel Webster went from his country home to Boston to study law. He entered without invitation the office of Christopher Gore, then at the head of the Massachusetts bar. He was regarded as an intruder and nobody paid him any attention. One day Rufus King saw the solitary student, and shook him warmly by the hand and said:

"I knew your father well. Be studious and you will win. If you want any assistance or advice, come to me."

Webster said when he was sixty years old that he still felt the warm pressure of that hand. When Peter took the lame man "by the right hand and lifted him up," immediately his feet and ankle bones received strength. And he, leaping up, stood, and walked, and entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping and praising God." (Acts III, 7-8.)

It is an easy thing to take a man by the hand, and if the hand has a heart behind it, and the clasp is of heart as well as hand, what wonder if by it men are uplifted and helped and saved?

urged to be present; 10, Sabbath School; 11, junior worship period and regular morning worship; 3, opening session of series of men's meetings with Rev. James Gilbert, rector of Grace P. E. Church, as speaker. Other speakers and dates will be announced in paper. An invitation is extended to all men. There will be special music, good singing.

6.45, Epworth League devotional service, leader, Elma E. Haefner; 7.30, evening worship.

During the week: Monday evening, official board meets at home of Charles Haefner; Tuesday evening, Ladies' Aid meets at home of Mrs. Alfred Woolman; Thursday evening, prayer meeting at 8.

The evening service begins at 7.45 p. m., with a song service, Thomas Lynn, a tenor soloist from Philadelphia, will be present to render the Gospel message in song. Mr. Lynn's singing has been a source of great joy to everyone who has heard it. The pastor will speak on "How the Believer Stands Before God."

On Wednesday night at eight, the weekly meeting for prayer and praise will be held.

Edgely Union Church

Rev. Peterson will speak at Edgely Union Church tomorrow at 11 a. m.

THREE STATE TROOPERS ARE GIVEN CITATIONS

Stewart, Farrell, Christ Are Commended for Their Bravery

ROUNDED UP CONVICTS

Three State Policemen stationed in Bucks County have received citations for heroic service. They are Corporal John Stewart and Trooper Farrell, Morrisville sub-station, and Trooper Harry Christ, formerly of the same station but now located at Jeffersonville.

All three policemen took an active part in rounding up the two convicts who escaped from New Jersey State Prison at Trenton and came over into Bucks County, last October.

It was Corporal Stewart who led a posse of State Prison guards, State and Philadelphia policemen to Oxford Valley, Bucks County, where both Wierman and McGrath were cornered and killed.

Farrell and Christ took an active part in the man-hunt. Christ, who was transferred from Morrisville to Jeffersonville, near Norristown, several months ago, was shot by a crazed farmer at Gerryville, near Quakertown, Pa., January 5. He is now recovering in Quakertown Hospital, where news of the citation reached him.

Corporal Stewart today announced the addition of one more trooper to his barracks. He is Trooper William Herman of Reading. The Morrisville barracks now has four officers, Corporal Stewart, Troopers Farrell and Herman and Trooper Peter Greblunas.

JEKYL-HYDE ATTORNEY

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Accused in court of having led a Jekyll-Hyde existence by enforcing the law during the day and violating it at night, State's Attorney Vincent Bell, of Whiteside County, today faced possible liquor conspiracy charges. The accusation caused a sensation in Judge Walter A. Lindsay's court today in the $12,000,000 Midwest liquor conspiracy trial. One of the defendants called to the stand as a prosecution witness named Bell as a member of the gigantic liquor ring.

TO INVOKE LEAGUE RULE

Shanghai, Jan. 16.—The Chinese Government today decided definitely to invoke Article XVI of the League of Nations Covenant in an effort to force Japan to abandon her occupation of Manchuria. Article XVI calls for complete suspension of trade, commercial and diplomatic intercourse between any nation stamped as an aggressor and all other nations with which it is interfering whether members of the League of Nations or not. The Article will be invoked at the regular meeting of the League of Nations Council at Geneva, February 25th.

LEAGUERS RALLY AT THE NEW HOPE M. E. CHURCH

2 Banners Awarded to Scottsville League; One to New Hope

REV. JACKSON SPEAKER

NEW HOPE, Jan. 16.—Using the Apostle Paul as an example and his words as texts, Rev. Samuel A. Jackson, pastor of the New Hope Presbyterian Church, delivered a splendid message to young people of the Bristol Group Epworth League in the Methodist Church here, last evening.

"I am a debtor," was dwelt upon, the speaker impressing on the young men and women their debt to God and to mankind.

"I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Jesus Christ," was another phrase of the Apostle used. "If you are ashamed of this good Book it will not carry you to the gates of Heaven," Rev. Jackson told. "Jesus Christ expects every young person to do his duty," he continued, paraphrasing the words of Lord Nelson. The message was closed with reference to the last word of General Booth of the Salvation Army, his message to the world, "Others."

Rev. Jackson was introduced to the group by Rev. Warren Smith, pastor of the church where the bi-monthly rally of the leagues occurred. Ernest Heizman, Bensalem Township, president of the group, presided. The invocation was given by Rev. Alexander B. Davidson, pastor of Trevoose M. E. Church. Greetings were brought by Rev. Stinson, president of the North District Epworth League, who congratulated the Leaguers on their work.

Two quartet numbers were presented, one by New Hope Leaguers and one by singers from Hulmeville. The former were awarded the banner for their selection. Attendance banner was received by Scottsville League with 17 present, this same group likewise receiving the percentage banner.

During the social period humorous readings were given by a young man from Philadelphia. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

At the next rally, Friday evening, March 18th, a discussion period will occur, the Leaguers' problems in connection with Sunday evening devotional meetings being considered. The conference banquet was announced, this to be held in Philadelphia, Saturday, March 12th.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 16, 1932
THE LESSON OF FRANKLIN
The anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birthday, is, quite appropriately, also one day of National Thrift Week.

We say quite appropriately because of all the many virtues possessed by Franklin none of them is more worthy of emulation by the people of this day and generation than the practice of thrift—a practice which enabled him to start as a poverty-stricken tramp printer and end his days as one of the wealthiest and most influential men of his time.

One might properly ask, "What is thrift?" and "Why do they start a campaign to try to persuade me to start a bank account, own my own home, make a budget, carry life insurance, pay my bills and make a will?" These are fair questions and here is a fair answer:

"Thrift is vision. Vision is thrift."

At times the idea of starting a bank account or taking out life insurance or buying your own home, or making budgets, or wills, occurs to all of us, but, with our usual human frailty and procrastination, we lack the quality of decision and determination to crystallize the idea into concrete action.

Therefore, a number of nationally prominent men and women have banded themselves together to concentrate the minds of Americans on the things we ought to do—things that we owe to ourselves and to our relatives to do—and for the next seven days they will preach the gospel of thrift, which is the gospel of good sense, so as to focus our attention on our plain duty.

Throughout National Thrift Week you will find the bankers, insurance men, real estate dealers and others whose advice you will need ready and willing to be of unusual service to you. And—don't forget that friend wife is one of the greatest little financiers in all this world, and that she can give you a tremendous lift when it comes to making up the family budget.

EARNED PROMOTION

Transfer of Governor Theodore Roosevelt from Porto Rico to the Philippines where he succeeds Governor Davis, who has resigned, amounts to a promotion as a reward for competent and effective service in Porto Rico. President Hoover has found in Roosevelt a man prepared by experience for the larger task of administering affairs in Manila.

Roosevelt's administration in Porto Rico was highly successful. He won over the major part of the anti-Washington opposition there and changed political chaos into order. But he will find a more difficult job awaiting him in the Philippines.

The first objective of a new governor in Manila is the winning of the confidence of the natives and the placating of the ambitious and clamorous native politicians. His knowledge of practical politics will be put to new tests there.

Roosevelt follows two men whose administrations were exceptionally fruitful. They have set him a pace that will not be easy to maintain, but his experience in Porto Rico ought to help him carry on in Manila.

Then from above burst a laugh, wild and jeering, and for a brief instant the horsemen below saw outlined against the desert sky.

PROLOGUE
In a patch of moonlight the masked rider halted. Just ahead, just beyond the fringe of shadowy mesquite that skirted the desert's edge, two dusty wagon tracks led out over the mesa. They were all that marked the Yuma-Verdi road, those tracks, and for fifty miles of cactus and sand they were all that recorded the turbulent existence of an international boundary line. But now, like faded, discarded ribbons, they stretched, lonely and indistinct, across the desert, then dropped abruptly over the edge of the mesa.
Minutes passed. The tall rider sat motionless—a brooding statue, silvered with moonlight. Only the eyes moved—eyes that glittered restlessly through the mask, tirelessly searching that velvet darkness ahead. A fitful night wind crept like a sigh among the mesquite. Once the horse pawed impatiently at the sand, and once he raised his head to catch some faint, elusive message.
Silence. An endless silence while the twisted shadows of the mesquite lengthened before the sinking moon. Toward the far-off Mexican foothills a coyote howled. Again silvery, moon-drenched silence, while the long minutes passed.
Abruptly, in the same startled second, both horse and horseman raised their heads. Out of the desert night rose a sound, far off and indistinct. From a formless, pulsating murmur it rolled nearer, until at last the sound resolved itself into the muffled tread of galloping horses.
Only then the quiet figure in the moonlight moved. A touch of the rein, and the horse stepped forward into the sheltering mesquite, where again they froze to immobile statues, lost in that shadowy obscurity. Gently the man's hand dropped for an instant to the black automatic at his side. The barrel was still warm. His knees clasped the horse more tightly. His lithe figure had taken on a new tenseness, and he leaned forward with coldly eager eyes.
In the moonlight ahead the night had become dimly peopled with galloping horsemen, swinging down toward the mesa's edge. Mexican cavalry on patrol. They rode in loose ranks, two abreast, talking in low tones. Little whirling pools of sand rose beneath their pounding feet, then died, and in another minute the sound of their hurried passing faded. As the last sombreroed figure melted back into that night of silence, the solitary horseman left the shadows and rode slowly to the mesa's rim. Leaning far out in the saddle, his eyes followed their steep descent to where, almost directly beneath him, the trail turned and plunged steeply downward. There the little cavalcade had halted.
In a tight circle they were clustered about a huddled figure that lay face downward in the road. Out of the stillness the angry hum of many voices rose to the solitary rider's ears, and beneath the mask his teeth gleamed in a brief smile. He bent forward, watching. Two men had slipped from their horses and raised the limp form in the roadway. For a moment their leader looked at the face, then formed the word "Lopez!" A shiver ran through the group. The night seemed to grow suddenly chill. Uneasily each man peered into the darkness as if it now loomed suddenly menacing.
Then from above burst a laugh, wild and jeering, and for a brief instant the horsemen below saw outlined against the desert sky the tall form of a masked rider. Leisurely his gloved hand rose in a derisive gesture, and again that jeering, mocking laugh floated down.
A rattle of stones as the horse swerved back, and now the dusty edge of the mesa gleamed white and empty beneath the moon.
CHAPTER I
On that same moonlit desert, twenty miles to the east, a train whistled and, with a screech of complaining brakes, rolled to a stop among the sands and cactus. The solitary passenger in the Pullman looked eagerly out into the night, then glanced at his watch. Frowning, he drummed for a moment on the window, then, lighting a cigarette, walked toward the door.

The first thing one might have noticed about the man was his great size. Tall, large-limbed, with huge shoulders and a chest that curved powerfully beneath the tan tweed suit. His walk, too, gave a sense of vast reserve power, the panther walk of a born wrestler. And next, as if in softening contrast, one noticed the friendly eyes of the man, the full but firm lips, curving upward a little at the ends, just enough to relieve some of the grimness in the square, clear-cut jaw. He was a man one might turn after in passing; a man one would remember without quite knowing why. About him one felt a sense of poise—a seasoned quality. As if life and perhaps sorrow had given him a maturity beyond his years. Yet he could not have been over twenty-five.
Pulling open the door the man looked down the track to where the red lantern of a flagman gleamed, then vaulted over the rear railing of the Pullman. For a moment he stood looking about him while the hot, unforgettable breath of the desert beat in upon him, bringing a message faintly, provokingly familiar. He felt the soft, dry sand beneath his feet. Behind him the tracks glistened over the desert, and ahead the great black locomotive panted. On either side faint, ghostly clumps of mesquite and cactus stretched endlessly into the night. Again a little vagrant wind stirred the sands. Exultantly he raised both powerful arms above his head.
"Gad," he rejoiced, "the old desert again." And once more like some wild thing he sniffed the air.
A sound above him revealed the Pullman conductor smiling down from the platform.
"Desert smell good tonight?"
"Does to me." The big man laughed. "It's a smell I'd almost forgotten. Do we stay here long?"
"The train from the north is late and we got to wait. Maybe most of the night."
"That puts us hours late into Verdi."
The conductor nodded. "We're due at Verdi junction in forty minutes—just midnight. We'll be lucky to get there by daybreak."

Wherever you wish to go, the sensible way to travel is by the safest and cheapest route.
Never before was it so important to have Safety in mind.
There are so many irresponsible persons on the roads, either as pedestrians or as drivers of private cars, that the careful driver must be alert at all times.
His car must be in good condition—that is one of the reasons for the inspection of automobiles now going on. His attention must be centered on his driving. He must have insurance to protect others against damage which he may do. The private driver is WORKING HARD every moment he is at the wheel.
The strain of modern life tells on all of us, but especially on women.
Why should you subject yourself or your family to unnecessary risks and strain, when it is needless?
Wherever you wish to go, our buses and trolleys will take you, or will carry you to points where you may make connections.
We carry you safely, expeditiously, economically.
Don't try to make your expensive-to-operate private machine do the work which our vehicles do so much safer and cheaper.
Wherever you may wish to go, use the buses and the trolleys.

Epaulets for '32

This charming 1932 suit, worn by Carole Lombard, screen player, though extremely simple, fairly exudes chic. The costume is created in black woolen cloth and is trimmed with epaulets and collar of silver fox. A jaunty muff of the same fur accompanies the outfit and gives a finish to the ensemble.

GEORGE WASHINGTON'S TRAVELS

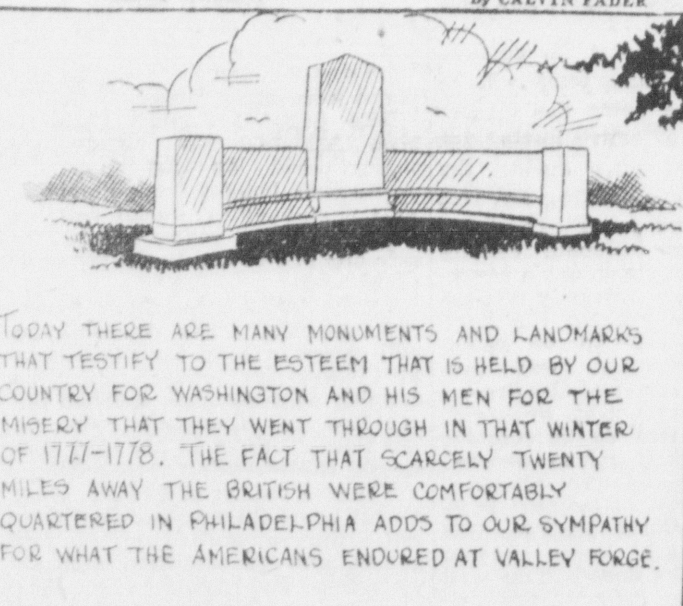

48 By James W. Brooks

Copyright 1930 by James W. Brooks All Rights Reserved

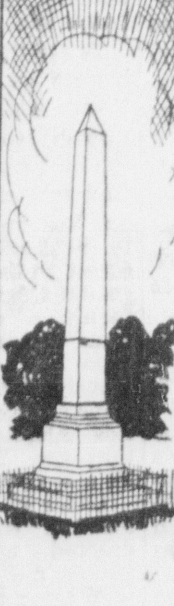

Historically Correct Sketches By CALVIN FADER

THE WINTER THAT WASHINGTON AND HIS TATTERED SOLDIERS SPENT AT VALLEY FORGE WAS A MOST TRYING EXPERIENCE. MANY OF HIS MEN DESERTED AND IT WAS ONLY THROUGH WASHINGTON'S COURAGE AND LEADERSHIP THAT HE KEPT HIS ARMY INTACT. WASHINGTON HIMSELF OCCUPIED A TENT FOR A WHILE.

TODAY THERE ARE MANY MONUMENTS AND LANDMARKS THAT TESTIFY TO THE ESTEEM THAT IS HELD BY OUR COUNTRY FOR WASHINGTON AND HIS MEN FOR THE MISERY THAT THEY WENT THROUGH IN THAT WINTER OF 1777-1778. THE FACT THAT SCARCELY TWENTY MILES AFTER THE BRITISH WERE COMFORTABLY QUARTERED IN PHILADELPHIA ADDS TO OUR SYMPATHY FOR WHAT THE AMERICANS ENDURED AT VALLEY FORGE.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS SCORE TWO VICTORIES

(By Leon Schiffer)

The Bristol High cage teams took the measure of the Bryn Athyn quintets yesterday afternoon on the latter's court when the Cardinal and Gray varsity banded the academy lads a 24 to 8 setback while the Bristol High junior varsity closely followed with a hard-earned 21 to 10 victory over the latter's jay-vees.

Although both quintets were fast and in fairly good condition the major portion of the varsity game was boring, both teams being erratic in both their shooting and passing. Incidentally, it was not until the end of the second quarter when the second varsity squad, captained by John Dougherty, was sent in, that the Cardinal and Gray boys were enabled to pile up a score, and it is to this team that all tribute for Bristol's victory should be paid.

Bornice was high scorer for the visitors with seven points to his credit, while Glenn of Bryn Athyn looped the cord for two double-deckers.

The top-notch of the day, however, was the Junior Varsity game, in which Ken Townsend's proteges, after being under-dogs for one half, emerged triumphantly with a 21 to 10 victory over the Bryn Athyn Academy lads.

Considering both quintets in regard to speed, condition, shooting and passing ability, this game was one of the most striking examples of hard uphill fighting ever set down in the annals of schoolboy basketball history, and the Cardinal and Gray minions deserve all the credit that can be paid to them for winning.

Tosti was the high scorer for the visitors with eight points to his credit, while Dykes garnered all scoring laurels for the besieged with four points to his credit.

Behind the Scene in Hollywood

By HARRISON CARROLL.

Copyright, 1931, Premier Syndicate, Inc.
HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 15.—Connie Bennett will go to Warners' to finish out that famous contract over which she received so much unfair publicity.

Her picture, "The Dangerous Set," an other drama of high society. Gregory Stone is the author. While the starting date naturally hinges upon R-K-O's plans, Warners are hoping to get under way some time in February. This will be Connie's second and last film for them. The first, "Bought," was one of the company's box-office hits of the year.

HE'S TAKING IT BIG.
The Hollywood salary cut has lighter moments. One scenarist dropped from $750 to $500 a week, so now he's bumming cigarettes.

GOINGS-ON IN HOLLYWOOD.
Ann Harding is back in town. She took a train from Atlanta, leaving Harry Bannister to come on with the family plane. Tallulah Bankhead is buying fire-crackers and says she is going to celebrate New Year as the Fourth of July. These Hollywood servants are at it again. One of my scouts called a leading man and the maid answered: "Why he's not here. He's down getting a marcel." George Arliss owns an own-your-own apartment in New York, which he doesn't want to own. Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Brimmer, parents of Richard Dix, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on May 18. Rich says his father is 75 and his mother 74. Ben Lyon's theatre party for "The Last of Mrs. Cheyne" was a turnout of Hollywood society. Saw Frank Joyce and Edwina Booth. Many eyes were turned on the upper box where Connie Bennett and Hank sat with sister Joan and Gene Markey. Mr. and Mrs.

Joe E. Brown sat in front of me and in the row behind were Norma Shearer and Irving Thalberg, Norma Talmadge, Edmund Goulding and his bride, Mary Pickford and many other celebrities. During intermission Billie Dove told me she is taking her mother to New York to put her on a boat. Billie was with Eddie Graham. All the stars were there. It was the theatrical event of the year.

LUCKY THERE WAS NO CUT HERE.

You may have thought this kind of thing always was faked, but there is a man in Hollywood, Steve Clemente, who has made a living throwing knives at stars. Steve is a Yaqui Indian who once served as a Colonel in the army of Pancho Villa. He is unerring with a knife or a hatchet. And he loves his work. You can see him fondle a knife as a mother does her baby. This unusual craftsman says that Bert Wheeler was the coolest victim he ever tossed a blade at. Among those stars who owe their lives to his marksmanship are Gary Cooper, Harry Carey, Warren Hymer and numerous others.

DOUG TURNS REPORTER IN NEXT FILM.

And now we are to have Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. as a reporter. His next picture for Warners will be "Love is a Racket," a newspaper story by Ryan James. This is the book which has been drawing raves from O. O. McIntyre. Young Doug is currently occupied with "It's Hell to Be Famous," which used to be called "The Goldfish Bowl." In this film he plays a Lindbergh.

DID YOU KNOW
That Phillips Holmes was a student for five years at Trinity College, England?
That dignified Clive Brook played on the London stage in the farce, "Fair and Warmer?"

Coasting Into the Majors

By HARDIN BURNLEY

PACIFIC COAST LEAGUE STARS!... who will try to shine in the Majors this season

--- BARBEE, HILL, COLEMAN, GIBSON, FARRELL, ECKHARDT, LAWRENCE.

Frankie CROSETTI... SAN FRANCISCO'S DIAMOND JEWEL WHO IS EXPECTED TO SPARKLE IN THE YANKEE INFIELD THIS YEAR!

THE Pacific Coast League, always a happy hunting ground for major league scouts, will have plenty of fresh representation in the big show during the 1932 season.

Frank Crosetti, San Francisco's brilliant shortstop and the flashiest looking lad of the lot, is expected to step right into the New York Yankees' lineup and be ready to do his stuff when the first cry of "play ball" rings out in April.

The dopesters have picked Frank, who has just turned twenty-one, as the boy who will guard the difficult corner for Joe McCarthy's outfit. The hard-hitting Frisco infielder broke in as a third baseman and his spectacular work in both positions has stamped him as a ball player in a million. Frank wielded the willow to the pretty tune of a .344 average and he led the Coast League sluggers with 144 runs. Among the 251 hits he whizzed out were 44 doubles, 14 three-baggers and four home runs.

A strong candidate for outfield honors on the same team will be Frank Hill, the home run clouter who did such effective hitting for the Hollywood club during the past two seasons. Young Mr. Hill has had but two years' experience in professional baseball, coming direct to the movie colony's aggregation from the University of California. Eddie Farrell, the third coast league star to be called East by McCarthy, was previously on the roster of the Braves, Cubs and Giants, but his work with Los Angeles was so spectacular that the Yankee solons decided he was ripe again for the big time.

Oscar Eckhardt, champion batsman of the Coast League, was drafted by the lowly Boston Braves and if he does half as well with them as he did with the Mission Club of San Francisco there is bound to be much grief among the mountsmen of the older circuit's other teams. Oscar rolled up the decidedly neat batting average of .369, smacking out 275 hits. Fifty-two of these wallopers were doubles, ten were triples and seven were home runs.

The pennant-winning Philadelphia Athletics will be further strengthened by Ed Coleman, whom they bought from Portland. This slam-banging bucko equaled Eckhardt's last year's record for safe hits and batted in the big total of 185 runs.

Dave Barbree, the Coast home-run monarch, will try to break up ball games in 1932 for the delight of Pittsburgh's rabid fans. This doughy apple-knocker ticked the spigot for four backer rides no less than 47 times in his 1931 season in Hollywood's green pasture. The star twirler of the Far West circuit bears the label of Sam Gibson. Sambo worked in 31 full games, and was credited with 28 victories. The payoff on Mr. Gibson was his earned run average of .248, which is class pitching anywhere. Gibson was with San Francisco last season.

Will You Help Those who are Willing to Work?

A number of men, women and girls of various vocations, who are willing to work but cannot find employment, have registered with the Bristol Unemployment Bureau.

Many of these have dependents and are the heads of families who find themselves in stringent circumstances during this time of depression.

A list of all such persons is available to those desiring the services of such a person or persons, regardless of the length of time for which such employment might be offered.

You are asked to make some sacrifice. Do your share by providing work for one or several days at your home or place of business.

If those who are able will give employment to these folks and thus aid them to earn that which they need, they will be accomplishing a two-fold purpose.
